

Introduction

"Praising what is lost makes the remembrance dear." –William Shakespeare

Remembrance is essential when learning from a true tragedy. By continuing the memory of those who suffered or were lost, the consequences of this event teach for a better future. In this WebQuest you will empower others to remember the Holocaust by demonstrating everything you have learned. This epic event in history will live on through you and your memorial. On a public Remembrance Day, your memorial will be displayed with pride and will hopefully be used in the future as a tool for remembrance, a product of educational value, a symbol of honor, and above all, a beautiful reminder of how precious life is every single day.
